Bradford Senior
High School
Bradford, Pa.

Foreword

Dear Diary,

With the close of this scholastic year, our days end in Bradford Senior High, the place whose scarred desks and well worn corridors have become so much a part of our lives. The thought of leaving our Alma Mater, "foster mother," fills us with nostalgia and remembrances.

To remember our classmates — junior and sophomore pictures have been included in our Diary. Clubs every Tuesday enriched our lives with hobbies, and we became acquainted with our faculty who willingly shared our hobby hours. The clubs story, too, is told in pictures.

One of the many pleasures we experienced in Senior High came with participation in the pep rallies that encouraged our Owl teams. Although more has been pictured and written about the varsity teams, intramurals added much to the spirit of interest in school athletics.

The Diary section that will become most worn and finger-marked will be the Senior Section where our friends will be remembered in the setting in which we knew them best.

Bradford merchants and business men are also an important part of our thinking, for they contributed moral and financial support. Our Patron Section will help us remember them.

Turn the page to the School Life Section which introduces this year's Barker and begin the odyssey with highlights of the 1956-1957 school year.

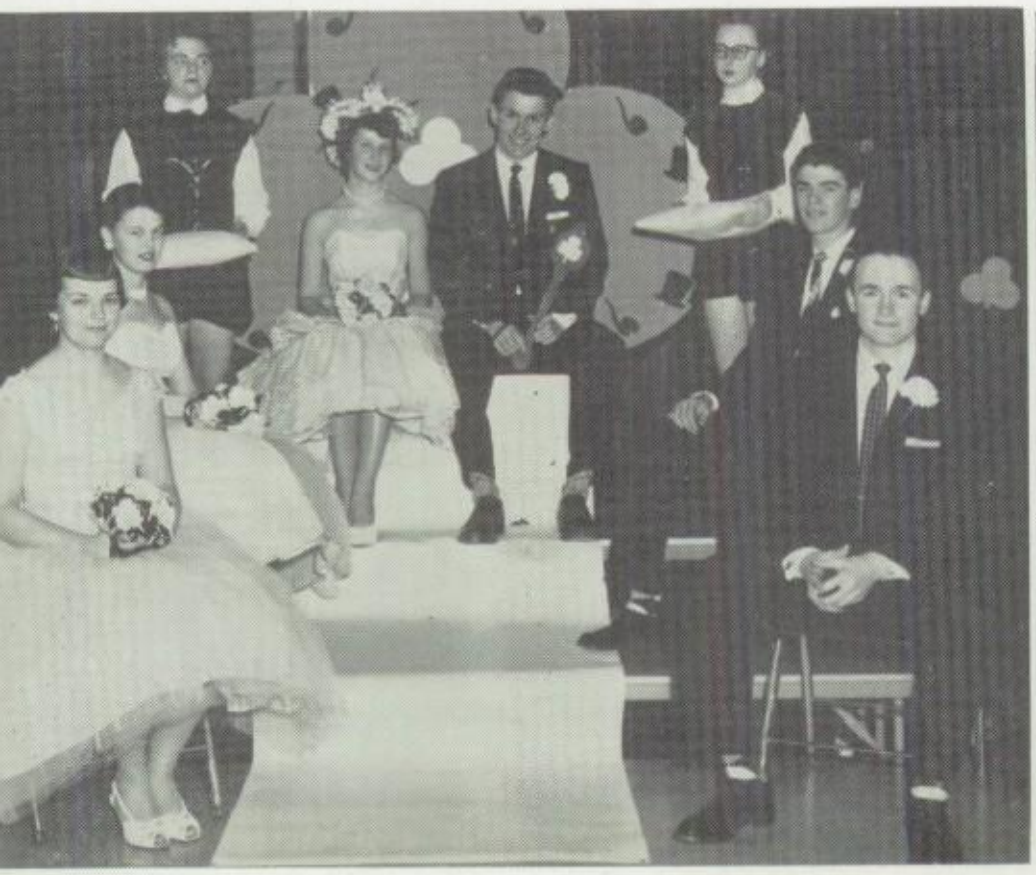
King Thayer Prentice, Queen Susan Phillips, and court reign at 1956 St. Patrick's Dance celebrating the wearing of the green.



Chemistry students Susan Barnett and Shelley Spencer do their part at the Science Fair by presenting an attractive display.

Mr. Olson, English Department, greets speakers at tea climaxing study of career interests.

Larry Ewing and Bill Raymond serve Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Griffith at dinner sponsoring Foreign Exchange Student.

Expectation and excitement herald the arrival of these happy prom-goers at the Juniors' "Sea Secrets" last May.

Seniors of 1956 close their days with an assembly reviewing their school life.

Models, in lovely round-the-clock apparel, pose with their escorts after the spring fashion show.

Couples in attractive spring ensembles form an interesting background while Kitty Craig models a summer evening gown at the 1956 fashion show.

Jim O'Connell running the mile holds spectators in suspense at a track meet.

An honor sought by all senior members of the Girls' Athletic Association is that of reigning as May Queen. The 1956 Court which consists of two girls chosen from each class is proudly presented on May Day with Queen Sissy Quinn.

Members of the court are: June Van Houtte, Cynthia Schattenberg, Emma Zdancevich, Sandy DiFonzo, attendants Michael Cracket and Christy Kritz, and Babs Taylor, Karol Kleiderlein, Joyce Phillips, Wilma Schierer.

Groups of juniors express happiness and approval as they hurriedly glance through the 1956 Barker and prepare to exchange signatures during the autographs period on the annual Barker Day in May.

These fourteen boys, first volleyball team sent from Bradford to a spring district meet at Johnsonburg, smile over their victory.

Todd Sloan, Pam Peterson, Charlotte Krieger, and Tom Kroh add hilarity to 1956 senior play.

David Johnson, Nora Knapp, and Joan Pais represent Bradford at year's music festivals.

Sharing with others is demonstrated in generous number of Thanksgiving baskets for needy families.

Ellen Gustavson, Carole Sweeney, and Nancy Stein chat with English "teacher," Martha Kohler, on Student-in-Charge Day.

Mixed emotions seize fans at one of the year's exciting basketball games.

Forensic honors are upheld by Dudley Rupert, Joan Pais, Pat Hunter at lectern, Bob Trimble, Dorothy Hyde, Larry Woodrum.

Carl Johnson and Carole Campbell hand Ray Masisak and Marge Mott sea animals for May prom decorations.

Yuletide assembly participants gather round the Christmas tree to cheer the coming Yule season.

Donna Kohler, Barb Schillinger, and Margaret Ricciuti help the Home Economics Department say Merry Christmas with festive decorations.

Interested parents listen to instructor, Daniel Smith, at annual Sophomore Parents' Night.

Mr. Donald J. Langley pauses from his duties as new vocational director of school.

Faculty and Administration

With higher educational goals in view

Miss Stella Sprague, B.S., director of secondary education in the Bradford City Public Schools, a graduate of Columbia University, has won high esteem for her support of the best in classroom techniques, testing media, and the selection of textbooks — well chosen material for students. Add to these her comforting words of wisdom to both young and old, sane, salient, and encouraging.

Mr. Floyd C. Fretz, B.S., M.A., superintendent of the Bradford City Public Schools, gives ready aid to the administration, the faculty, the students, and to the Board of Education that they may cooperate as a unit dedicated to efficiency and accomplishment. Occupying an important place in civic and educational organizations, Mr. Fretz has achieved much for local schools.

Board meets administrators monthly

Wise planning, prudent but productive, as in the purchase of school supplies and equipment, is but one duty which confronts the members of the Board of Education of the Bradford City Public Schools. At monthly meetings and, when necessity demands, at special meetings, the members discharge their responsibility to every student enrolled in the city schools.

Upon recent acceptance by the Board, the Vocational Department of Senior High will alternate students between shop or laboratory to classroom every day beginning September, 1957. This will replace alternation by weeks.

Standing: W. J. Lowery, treasurer; Guy McKittrick, E. R. Torgler, J. B. Mitchell.
Seated: J. M. Bird, vice-president; F. E. Eckert, president; J. P. Jones, secretary.

Our leaders, counselors, advisers

A graduate of Temple University and of the University of Pittsburgh with the degrees of B.S., M.Ed., our principal Mr. George Bell has won the admiration of the student body by his ever-ready smile and by his patience in dealing with youthful problems.

All students have an opportunity to meet Mr. Raymond Getz, B.S., M.Ed., dean of boys, and Miss Ruth Stewart, A.B., A.M., dean of girls. First among the varied duties of these faculty members are the recording of daily attendance and the counseling of students in the advisable choice of courses of study and careers.

Office hands cooperate in duties

Office secretaries Joyce Herbert, Vivian Pollock, and Beverly Holliday seem to carry on in spite of the many interruptions. Main office atmosphere is normal when the mimeographing machine is in operation, the telephone is ringing, and several students and faculty members are requesting attention at the counter.

Dale Roggenbaum, senior, assists Joyce Herbert in the attendance office. Calling the homes of all absentees to determine the cause of non-attendance constitutes a major program for the staff. The student assistant who is appointed for a week's work, one class period daily, also helps compile and deliver list of absentees to all classroom instructors.

Combination of numerous skills

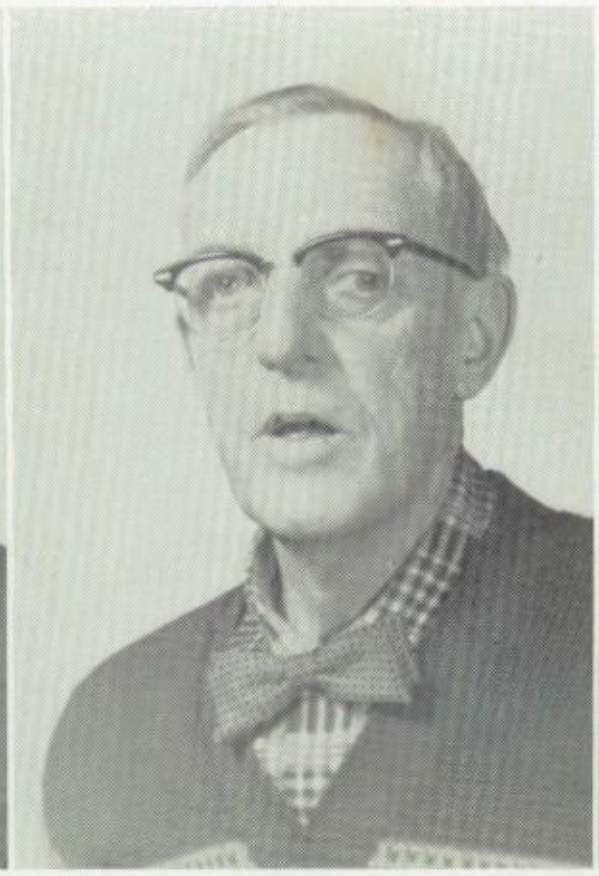
Dr. David R. Wilson, school dentist, Miss Jeanette Holden, A. B., dental hygienist, and Mrs. Pauline Engel, clerk, make regular examinations of the students' teeth. Parents are informed if dental work is necessary for their sons and daughters.

Dr. H. D. Simmons, with Miss Caroline F. Reitz, B. S., and Mrs. Mary Edmonds, school nurses, complete the medical department of the city public schools. Daily visits are scheduled to the various schools for students' biennial physicals.

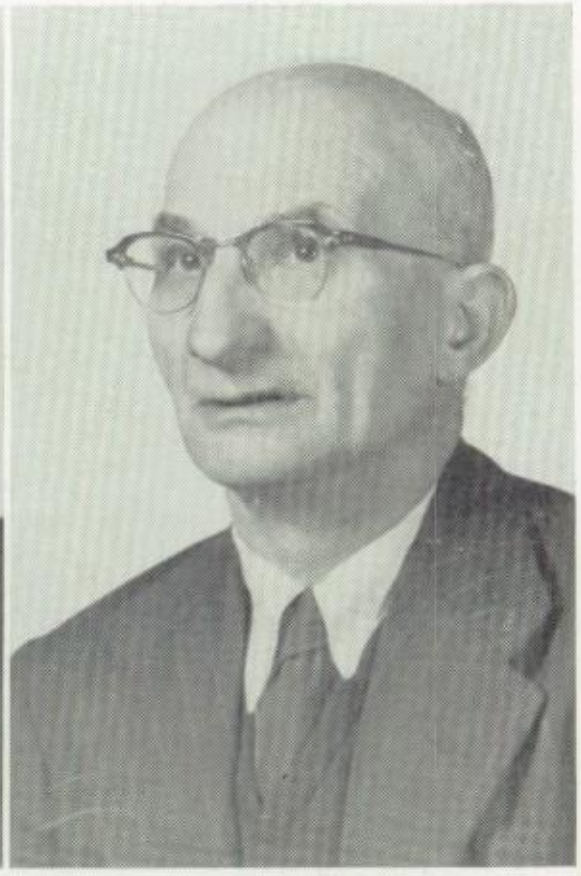
Necessary for school to function

A visit to the serving counter where noon day calls hungry students for hot meals finds Mrs. Mary Anderson and her staff: Mrs. Margaret Bell, Mrs. Louise McCutcheon, Mrs. Mary Pascale, and Mrs. Mayme Shick. Absent from picture is Mrs. Lillian Hanson.

Bruno Salerno is the youngest member of the staff of custodians.



Ralph Gilson has served Senior High School for almost a decade.



Mike Thomas, head custodian, is always on call for prompt duty.

English Department, seated: Helen Hastings Smith, A.B.; William Olson, A.B., A.M., head of the English Department; Elzear Schoch, A.B., M.Litt. Standing: Mary Mottey, B.S., M.Litt.; Ruth Mutter, A.B., M.Ed. Mildred Friedman, A.B., is pictured below.

Mrs. Friedman, Miss Mottey, and Mr. Olson instruct seniors in the compilation of notes and the writing of a term paper, in addition to literature and other writing. Reporting and writing newspaper articles make-up Miss Mottey's journalism class program.

Juniors study Shakespeare's Macbeth in addition to doing creative writing in Miss Mutter's and Mrs. Schoch's classes. Mrs. Smith plans the sophomores' literature reading to start with a study of Tennyson's Idylls of the King.

Mrs. Friedman points out the early settlement of England. Tom Bolles and Chuck Callahan are in foreground.

Pat Foss prepares her speech by use of a tape recorder operated by Mr. Olson.

Latin students in Mrs. McCarthy's classes become familiar with Latin sources of English words and forms and translate historical selections. Miss Harper and her French students converse in the foreign language on the subject of French customs, history, and travel. Students interested in the neighbors of the United States to the south and other Spanish speaking people learn to express themselves in Spanish taught by Miss Smith.

Foreign Languages Department: Marianne McCarthy, A.B., A.M.; Helen F. Smith, A.B.; Daphne Harper, A.B., A.M.

Karol Kleiderlein repeats a Spanish phrase after hearing Señorita Smith's pronunciation.

Driver, physical ed, health in curriculum

Safety is primary with Mr. Gidding's driver training course which is divided into classroom work and in-the-car instruction.

Miss Atkinson and Mr. Maxson, gym instructors, stress good sportsmanship and efficiency in calisthenics, in organized sports, and on gym apparatus.

Sophomores find Mr. Schoepf's health course a challenging one. The human body and its functions comprise a full program.

Ann Fannin and Mr. Giddings prepare for a practical application of good driving rules.

Sara Bryner looks to Mr. Maxson and to Miss Atkinson for advice as she twirls the Indian clubs.

Health and Driver Training Departments: standing, George Schoepf, B. S.; Richard Giddings, B. S. in Forestry
Physical Education Department: seated, Margaret Atkinson, B. S., M. A.; Robert Maxson, B. S., M. A.

Social Studies Department: standing, Dorothy Currie, A.B., James Tompkins, A.B.; Daniel Smith, B.S.; seated — Linnea Fahnstrom, A.B.; Delores Wilson, B.S.; Harriet Titus, A.B., A.M.

Mrs. Fahnstrom and Arnold Wells locate the Suez Canal.

Fred Johnson points out the Louisiana Purchase as Miss Titus tells of its significance.

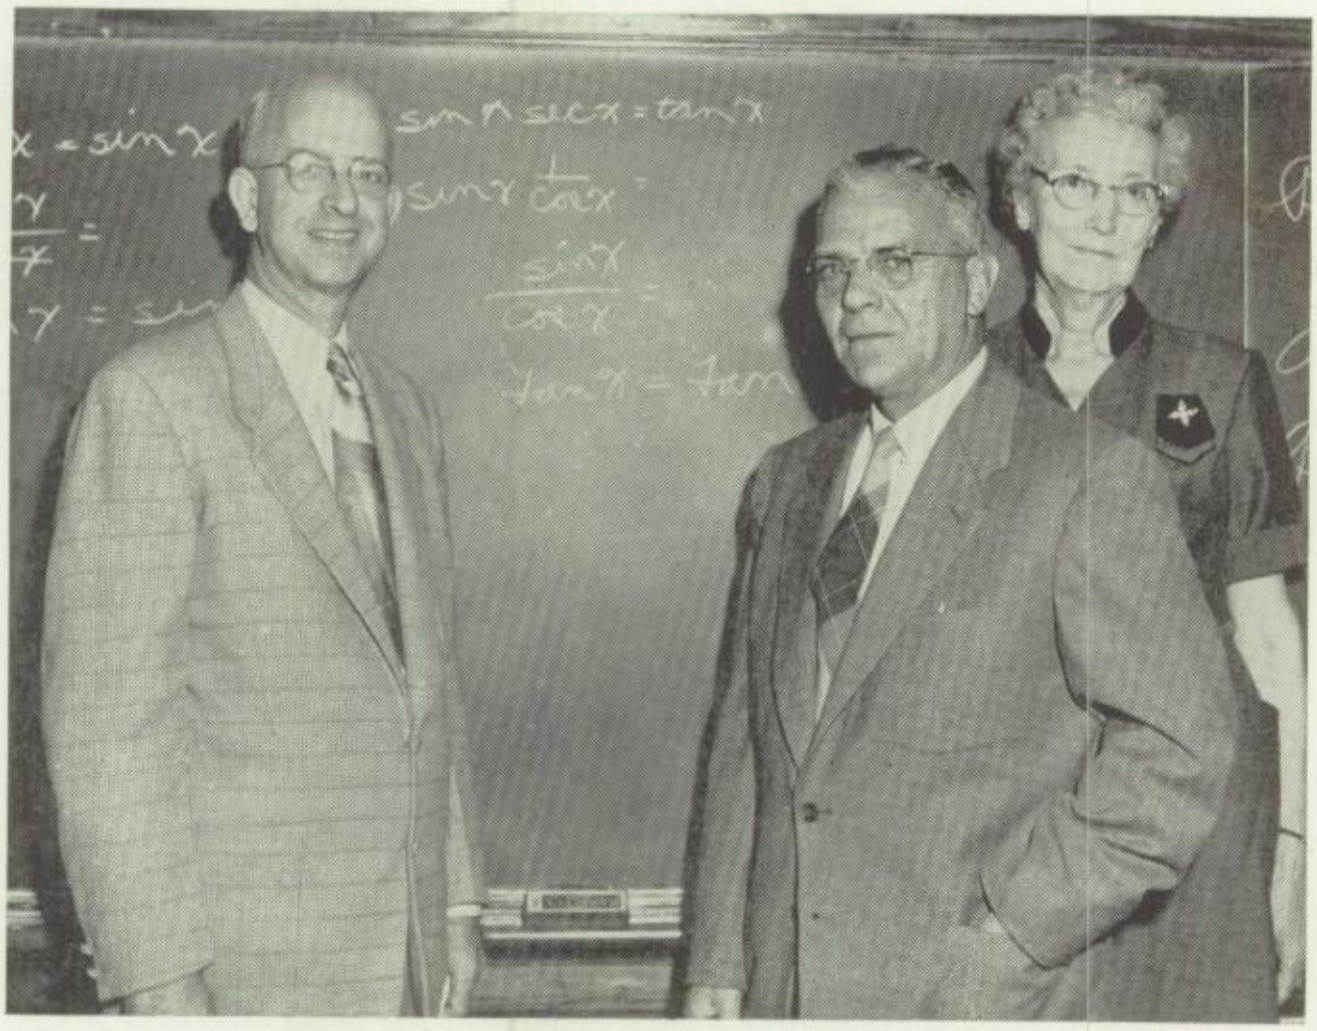
World history gives sophomores a knowledge of the past. Mr. Smith guides them in their study.

American history and problems of democracy are the content of junior history taught by Miss Titus and Mr. Tompkins.

Seniors study American history of the period after the Civil War. They work on problems of democracy and a unit on city planning. Miss Currie and Mrs. Fahnstrom instruct the seniors.

All seniors look forward to Mrs. Wilson's informal Modern Living class in which they discuss social problems, as well as dating and marriage.

Achieve proficiency in mathematics



Mathematics Department: Freas Downing, A.B.; Francis Denning, A.B., M.Ed.; and Minnie Davison.

Mr. Downing teaches solid geometry and trigonometry in terms of sines, tangents, and secants to seniors. Juniors attempted linear and quadratic equations as part of algebra II with instruction by Mr. Downing and by Mrs. Davison until she was forced to leave because of a fall shortly before Christmas.

Mr. Denning hopes to develop principles of logical reasoning in the sophomores who make up his geometry classes where the relationship of lines = and angles in geometric figures is of first importance.

Karen Kirsh and Ken Zamberlan at Mr. Denning's desk follow his explanation of a geometric theorem.

Prepare students for business fields

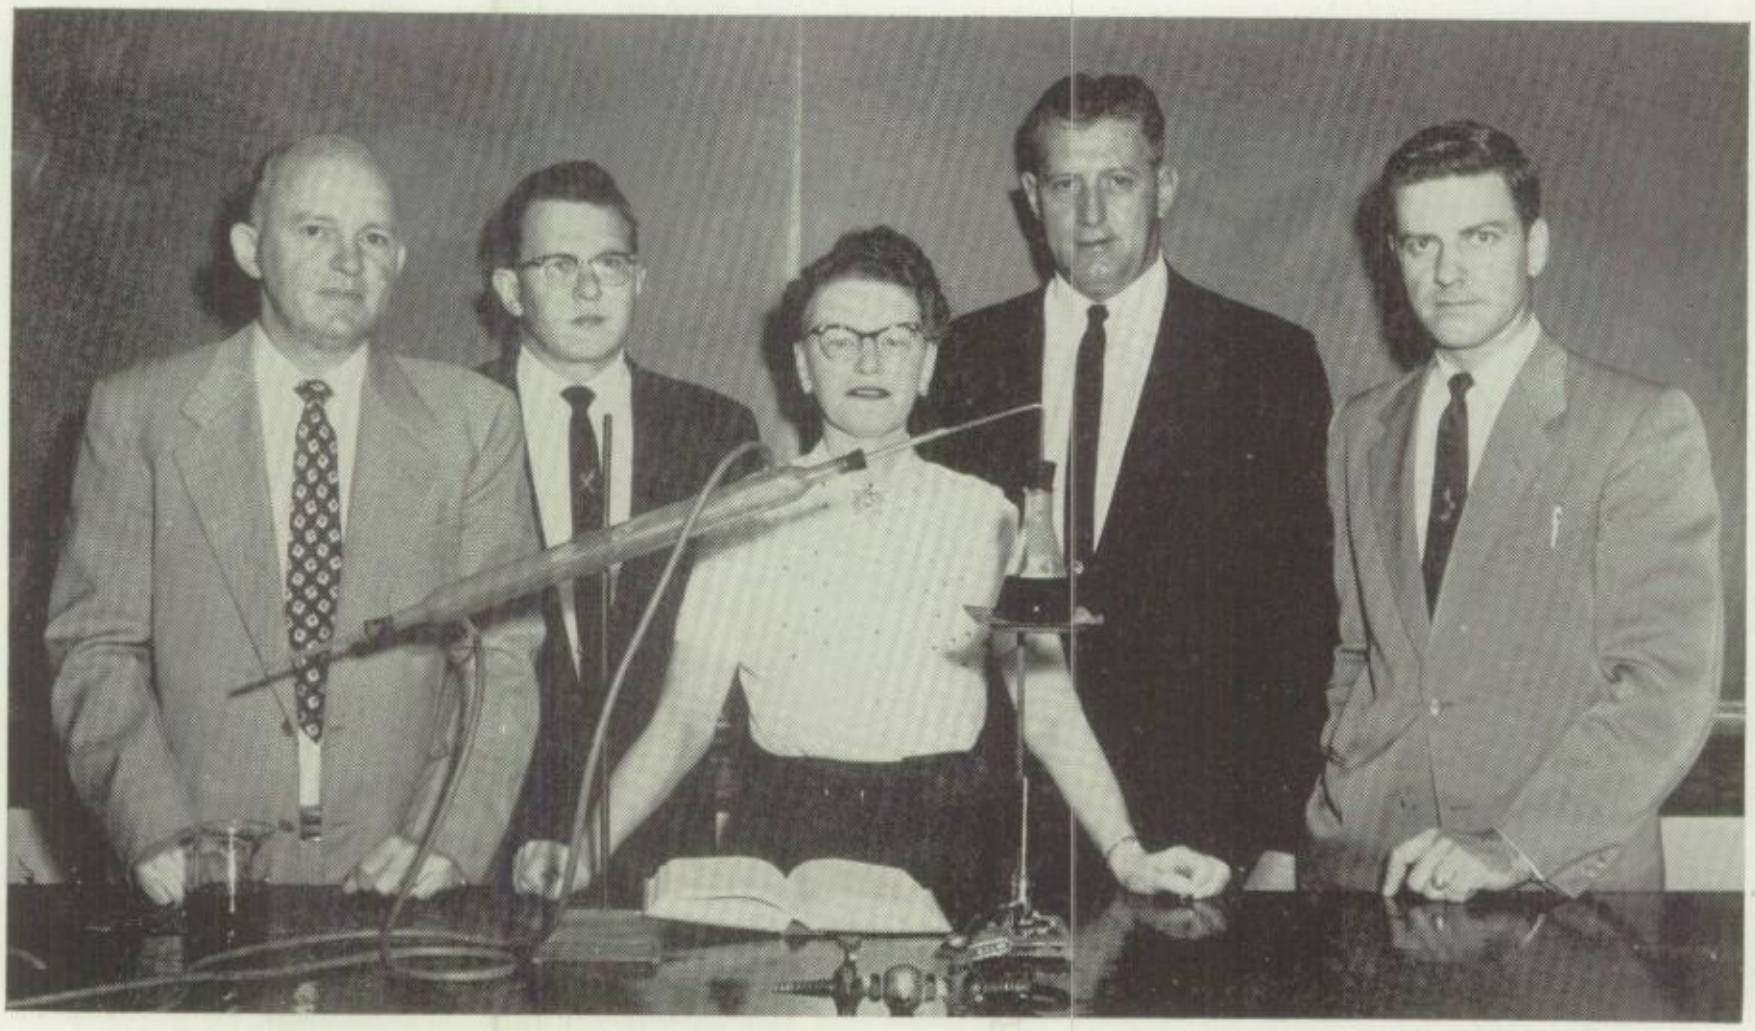
Always valuable, Typing I and II are taught by Mrs. Baltzer, Mrs. Shea, and Miss Raver. Students in Mrs. Baltzer's class employ their pen and memory to learn the abbreviated language of shorthand. Opportunities to become acquainted with the newest business machines are available for students under Mrs. Blessing's direction.

Bookkeeping, under Miss Raver's instruction, and Typing and Transcription in Mrs. Shea's classes give students required experience. Business Mathematics and Law, and Consumer Education, taught by Mr. Smith and Mr. Brace, respectively, round out the Business Education Course of Study.

Mrs. Baltzer passes more paper to Dolores Powell who is practicing typing a business letter.

Business Education Department: Joseph Smith, B.S. in Commerce, M.Ed., head of the Business Education Department; Margaret Baltzer, B.S.; Eva Blessing; Jean Shea, B.S.; Harold Brace, B.S., P.Ed. Seated: Marian Raver, B.S.

Lead in investigation of scientific facts



Albert Clark, B. S., M. S. Ed., instructs seniors in the laws of physics. Juniors, supervised by Ronald Marks, B. S. in Ed., don their black aprons to perform chemical experiments. Sophomores in biology learn the life processes of plants and animals with the direction of Laura Allen, A. B., M. A. Peter Pasko, B. S., M. S., and David Barnhart, B. S., M. E., teach science and biology to students of the general and vocational courses.

Dave Petry and Carole Campbell utilize the slide rule as Mr. Clark looks on and encourages.

Help students acquire vocational skills

Vocational Education Department: seated, Harley Guilford; Mary Callahan, B. S.; Charles Callahan, B. S., M. Ed.; Sara Weaver, B. S., head of the Homemaking Department; Arthur Kuropkat; standing: Charles Merritt; Vance Kennedy, M. E.

Teaching woodworking and the techniques which make a good carpenter provide a full program for Mr. Guilford. Mrs. Callahan and Miss Weaver share their knowledge of cooking and sewing in the well equipped Homemaking Department.

Blueprints and drafting constitute Mr. Callahan's mechanical drawing course. Mr. Kuropkat's students become familiar with the construction and the repair of electrical appliances.

Mr. Merritt teaches boys the intricacies of the machines in Machine Shop, while Mr. Kennedy directs them in the understanding of work in the Auto Shop.

Mr. Merritt supervises Andy Roeder as he turns a small bolt on an engine lathe.

Develop music, art, reading skill

Fine Arts Department: seated, Doris Van de Bogart, A. B., A. M.; Mary Hamilton, A. B., B. S. in Library Science; standing, Hubert Randall, A. B.; Armat Duhart, Mus. B.; Rodney Schech, A. B., M. Ed.

Senior High students have ample courses in the fine arts from which to choose, viz., Miss Van de Bogart's choruses, Miss Hamilton's reading guidance, Mr. Randall's art classes, Mr. Duhart's orchestra, and Mr. Schoch's band.

Miss Hamilton helps Bev Gallagher and Carole Francis locate a baffling word.

Gloria Bond poses for art students Darla Austin, Benno Mills, Jeananna Wingard, and Hal Kenyon.

Dixelanders: Tom Bolles, Chuck Callahan, Jack Mongillo, Dave Clark, and Dave Johnson entertain at half time at a basketball game.

Community interest, important agent

Judy Burns pours coffee for Mr. Clark, two guest speakers, and Mr. Callahan at Career Speakers Day.

Sophomore student council members register parents at November Open House.

Miss Allen and Mrs. Mattison converse at Parents Night.

Miss Titus and Mr. Duhart treat their two guest speakers to coffee poured by Miss Burns.

Classmates and Clubs

No longer timid, confused novices

Seated: Betty Austin, secretary; Andy Ellenberger, vice-president; Carole Longo, treasurer. Standing: David Johnson, president.

The Class of 1958 reported back to school on September 5, 1956, filled with summer memories and anticipating another school year and its many activities. After the initial excitement, they settled down to the election of class officers on October 8. Their busy schedules included the presentation of "See How They Run," the Junior Class Play, and the junior-senior prom.

In presentation of the sophomore assembly, these lassies give their interpretation of dolls. Sharon Halpern, Vicki Astolfi, Virginia Keverline, Betty Austin, Sally Sweely, Ann Peckham, Carol Hane, Laurel Eger, and Pat Foss display agility and dancing prowess in assembly enthusiastically witnessed by the student body.

Denny Kamerer, the master of ceremonies, Carol Sweeney, and Martha Kohler, enjoy Marshall Hudson's guitar rendition of one of our favorite current melodies. Marshall's act was among many varied tableaux presented in the sophomore assembly.

Awed neophytes step cautiously

The Sophomore Class became integrated as part of Bradford Senior High School life with their presence at pep assemblies, the installation of student government officers for the current year, their preparation of Thanksgiving baskets for the needy of the community, and their reception of parents on Sophomore Parent's Night, October 29. Through the active part they assumed in student affairs, the sophomores prepared well to meet their responsibilities as juniors.

Sophomores uphold school tradition

Mr. Albert Clark, chairman of Sophomore Class Advisers, guided the beginning students through their first, exciting year at Bradford Senior High School. He helped them discard apprehension and timidity for a show of ability and tenacity.

Chosen by their classmates as leaders to represent them in Student Council, the following aided Mr. Clark in his advisorship: Carl Bartlett, Bill Carter, Jill Dana, Paul Glander, Downs Herold, Burt Larson, Jane Miller, Bob Parks, Ginny Smeal, Fred Stock, and Terry Williams.

One of the important projects which the sophomores assume is the program for Frosh Day in May when the visiting freshmen from Junior High School are acquainted with Bradford Senior High and its spirit.

With the added experience and knowledge acquired in their first year, the sophomores will better carry on the school traditions as juniors.

Miss Harper advises her sophomore English class as the students do research in the library. All English classes have an opportunity to use the library for reference and study during regularly assigned class periods.

Community, student body anticipate football formations, annual concerts

Wearing flashy red and black uniforms, the eighty-four member Bradford Senior High Band, under Mr. Rodney Schoch's supervision, performs at each of the Owl's home football games to raise the spirits of the football team and fans. Led by eight high-steppers and two color guards, the music lovers present drills and maneuvers set to popular tunes and spirited marches.

These students prove their talents in the presentation of rousing assemblies for the members of the Junior and Senior High Schools. Their efforts are further rewarded in the choice of fifteen musicians to attend the District Band Festival held this year in Port Allegany.

Other musical extravaganzas which are long remembered by the audiences are the annual concert conducted by Mr. Frank Gullo of Pennsylvania State University and the combined concert with Warren High School in the spring.

Wendy Wilson and Sandra Clark lead the band carrying the school flag and "Old Glory."

Majorettes

The characteristic "click, click" of the responsive baton of Mr. Armat Duhart, our accomplished director, is heard as themes of classical and modern music carry from the orchestra pit through the auditorium while the orchestra rehearses sixth period daily.

After many hours of practice, instrumental techniques are perfected, and orchestral terms and theories are studied until involved selections are mastered. Full, rich tones of the varied instruments blend harmoniously in the strains of the overtures selected for performances, namely, the Junior and Senior Class Plays.

The reward to capable students who attend District Orchestra and the stirring perfomance of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" at graduation will be remembered.

Carole Bromley practices orchestral techniques at weekly lesson under Mr. Duhart's instruction.

Ushers, parodists contribute talent

"Two down front, please" are words spoken to pretty usherettes, dressed in swishing nets, satins, and taffetas, who pleasantly conduct us to our seats during class plays and other civic and social functions. Directed by Mrs. Linnea Fahnstrom, they permit the social activities of our school to be run smoothly and efficiently.

Under Miss Helen Smith's careful guidance, the members of the Make-Up Club master the disguise of the human face. By learning to smear grease properly, to dust power, to daub rouge, and to draw wrinkles, the make-up artists become expert in the skill of creating facial characterization for the Senior and Junior Class Plays and the Christmas assembly.

Each Tuesday brings the gathering of America's future Florence Nightingales. Preparing for their career of nursing these girls are enlightened regarding their duties and responsibilities by two capable leaders, Miss Carolyn Reitz and Miss Jeanne Wilcox. On their agenda are visits to the Bradford Hospital where they learn the proper procedures in making beds, giving back rubs and sponge baths. The advantages and disadvantages of nursing in industry are revealed through trips to Dresser Manufacturing Company and Kendall Refinery. Movies presenting various schools and phases of nursing are shown to aid the club members in making plans for their future training.

Playing the parts of Molly's children, Dick Brittain, Joan Patterson, and Jim Bayer at left appear in a scene from the Junior Class Play, "Me and Molly," presented February 2 and 3, 1956.

Others in the cast are: Ruth Ann Burritt in the title role of Molly Goldberg; Max Goodman, her husband; Sandra Clark, a neighbor; Bob Thomas and Elaine Jones, teenage Goldbergs; Gary Goodman, an uncle; Doris Beck, John Bibb, Marilyn Case, Bill Ferris, Norma Graff, Lois Graves, Ken Lucas, Charles VanDyke, Wendy Wilson, and Millie Woodley.

The comedy, directed by Miss Ruth Mutter and Miss Mary Mottey, was written by Gertrude Berg as a saga of a Bronx family.

"Music hath charms;" Norma Graff, center, engages Ken Lucas' interest while Elaine Jones, lost to present company, dreams her own dreams.

Elaine Jones and Gary Goodman listen to Ruth Ann Burritt, center, as she goes over plans she has in mind for the Goldbergs.

Seniors select "Mr. Barry's Etchings"

Mr. Barry, portrayed by Tom Kroh, places handmade currency in private chest.

Each class presents a junior play and a senior play. Actors are necessary for the dramatics action, but other work goes into producing a worthy performance. Weeks before opening night, hand in hand with rehearsals, classmates back stage construct the set, sell tickets, and organize for the big night. The Misses Ruth Mutter and Mary Mottey directed "Mr. Barry's Etchings" of November, 1956.

Indignant Pam Peterson, center, amazes Todd Sloan, Charlotte Krieger, and Tom Kroh.

The 1957 class chose Mr. Barry's Etchings, a three-act comedy as their annual senior play production. The plot, centering in the bachelor apartment of eccentric Mr. Barry, involves a national counterfeiting ring, and the philanthropic efforts of Mr. Barry. Politics and romance are added to make this an entertaining success.

Committee chairmen for play are Roger Good, publicity; Judy Dana, properties; Ken Lucas, tickets; and Ned Hutchins, stage.

(Mrs. Taylor), Charlotte Krieger, chides (star brother), Tom Kroh about his unemployment's causing unpaid bills.

Combined efforts mystify audience

Bruce Kinney, Bill Woodring, and Ray Youmans man master switch to give lighting effects.

Tom Kroh, Mr. Barry; Charlotte Krieger, his sister; Reid Haug and Marjorie Mott, an engaged couple; Bob Burkey, gangster; Sandra Clark, Todd Sloan, Pam Peterson, and Jim McCune, neighbors in Stanwich.

Juniors reveal "Sea Secrets" theme

Mr. Fretz, superintendent, in prom line receives Ginny Keverline with Todd Sloan; Bill Zeigler greets Miss Harper.

Latin American tempo creates mood for dancers to swing to lively rendition of the Mexican Hat Dance. Vivan los méxicanos!

Anticipating the Junior Prom, decorators Gayle Howe, Todd Sloan, Bob Holzwarth, Wendy Wilson, and Shelley Spencer construct the coral cave.

Assembly climaxes Christmas festivity

Male members of chorus enter auditorium singing the processional hymn for annual Christmas assembly program written by Miss Van de Bogart, chorus director, and presented to the student body. Mrs. Helen Smith and Miss Helen Smith assisted as dramatics and make-up advisers.

Principal actors in this original play, "The Spirit of Christmas" are Sandra Fuller, Barb Schultz, Sandra Taylor, Karol Kleiderlein, Sylvia Benasutti, Ursula Koop, and Judy Dana who are busy wrapping gifts with Shelley Spencer, seated. Scene is office in United Nations Building.

As the girls begin to end impromptu gathering with candlelight ceremony, Sam Carnell, portraying Spirit of Christmas, enters from rear window and through his presence the girls are able to see Holy Family.

Sam Carnell, Spirit of Christmas dressed in white surplice, stands with lighted candle before Nativity scene which is enacted by Jim Deasey, standing shepherd; Peggy Peterson, Mary; Glenn Ward, Joseph; and Ross Warner, kneeling shepherd.

Cautiously, Sonja Morgan, Jane Siffrin, Belva Toothman, Barbara Petitt, Dixie Miller, and Dave Cannon experiment wth new steps.

More confident, Duane Carlson, Martha Simons, Dixie Miller, and Dave Cannon try skill at square dancing.

With the victrola blasting, the girls counting and the boys leading, couples of the Social Dancing Club imitate dancing procedures demonstrated by Mrs. Delores Wilson, Mrs. Molly Callahan, and Mr. David Barnhart, advisers.

Every Tuesday club period the boys' gym is transformed into a ballroom while the dancers-to-be practice patterns to the tunes of the latest musical platters. From basic steps to popular old and new dances, the class makes progress.

POWER IS VESTED IN THEM

"The students of today are the leaders of tomorrow." It is on this assumption that the Student Council functions. Under the guidance of Miss Ruth Stewart, adviser, and Larry Ewing, president, the members who are the elected presidents from each homeroom try to carry out the wishes of the student body and cement the faculty-student relations.

The council is organized to function through many committees to accomplish these aims. The Social Committee, under the guidance of Dave Petry, plans dances and other social events including the Sadie Hawkins Dance and the Hi-Ya Week Dance. The year's assemblies are arranged and planned by the assembly committee headed by Susan Barnett, while another committee welcomes new students and gives them aid the first days they are in school.

This year the foreign exchange program was instituted in our school. After a year of planning and fund raising, Ursula Koop from Germany was brought to our school. She, by her presence, has benefited the whole school. The council has attempted to promote school spirit through red and black days, discounts to students with activity tickets, and through pep rallies. With these purposes and the fulfillment of these goals, the Student Council endeavors to help the school.

Co-operating to guide, council excels

Student Council Officers Sandra Chittister, Larry Ewing, and Jerry Scott, advised by Miss Ruth Stewart, plan council meetings and projects resulting from weekly sessions.

Barker staff with aid of advisers

An editorial staff with Joan Patterson, editor-in-chief, met each morning during the first semester to compile a memory book of school year activities. The problems of meeting deadlines and perfecting lay-out and co-ordinating all effort could not have been solved without the knowing guidance of the advisers, Mrs. Marianne McCarthy and Mr. Joseph Smith.

The 1957 Barker is yours at last! With Mrs. Marianne McCarthy's and Mr. Joseph Smith's help, the Barker Staff has produced what it hopes is an excellent yearbook.

It is hard to believe that, while the students were still enjoying the 1956 Barker, the staff was busily completing lay out, selecting a cover design, planning with engravers, photographers, and printers, fitting staff members into different departments, taking pictures of the prom, the Junior Class Play, and the hundred other activities which are part of the 1957 Barker.

By September, much preliminary work had already been accomplished. With the junior staff's assistance, the members scurried around town obtaining the vital patron subscriptions. Soon the whole campaign began to function. Activity pictures of school life, individual pictures, club pictures were taken as the schedule dictated.

Finally the colossal job of sending the pages and pages off to the press was underway and in time was completed.

On Barker Day, May 10, the staff's efforts were rewarded by the considered comments of the students and faculty. Through the activities portrayed, the members of the Barker Staff hope the best memories associated with school life may be retained.

Reporters publish news without detriment

Under the direction of competent editors and Adviser Miss Mottey, the Courant Staff meets the challenge to produce a Courant every other week.

The editors and adviser are: seated, Sandra Chittister, Sandra Clark, Shirley Gustavson; standing, Ruth Anne Burritt, Miss Mottey, Wendy Wilson.

Every fifth period, room 117 becomes the production center for Senior High's semi-monthly newspaper, The Courant. Aided by members of the Courant Clinic who meet on Tuesdays to learn the rules of newspaper writing and guided by Miss Mottey, the Courant Staff publishes information of import to the school and the community.

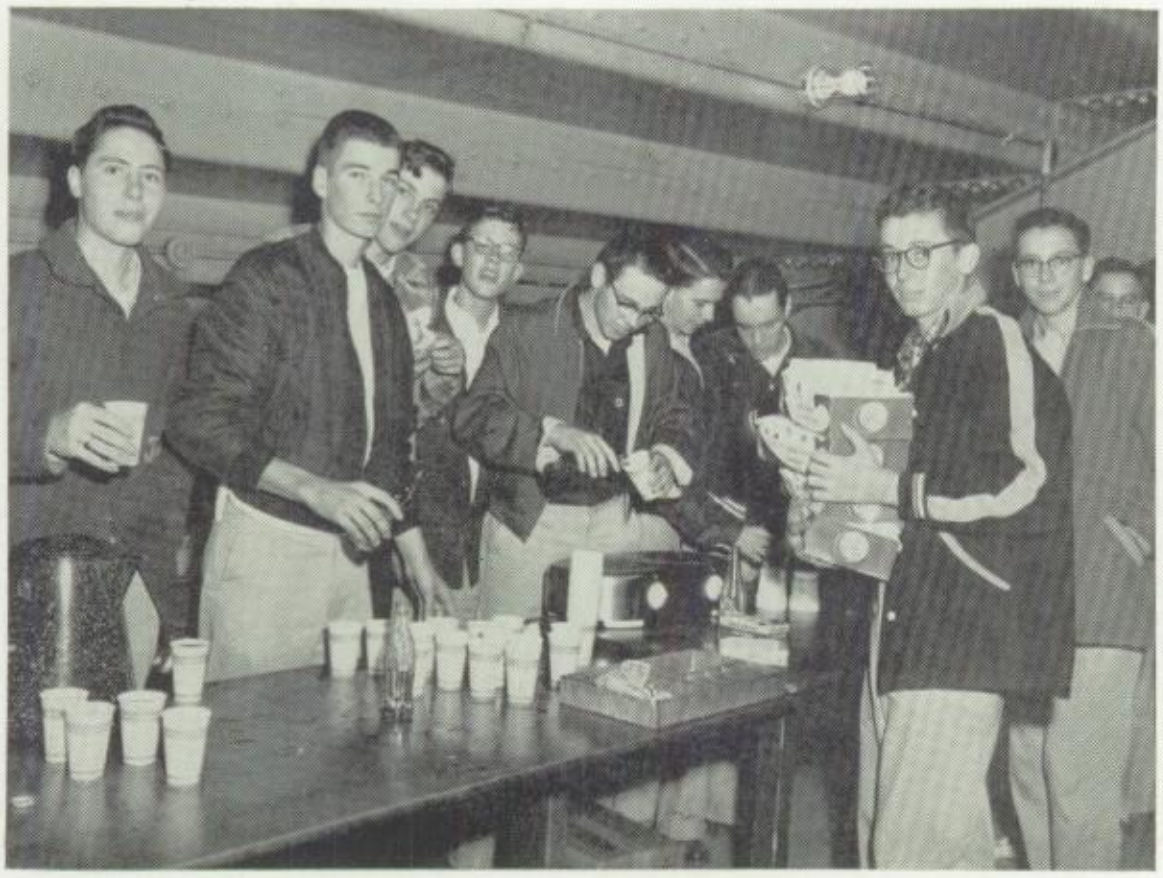
Volunteers provide unending service



Hats off to our Bradford Senior High Key Club! Under the efficient direction of Mr. David Barnhart, the members operate a concession stand to provide hungry football fans with hot dogs and coffee during the Owls' home games. Operating check rooms for various school and civic functions and sponsoring an after-game dance are other projects promoted by this service club.

Interweavers perfect intricate stitches

Miss Sara Weaver is busy during her club sessions teaching complex stitches and difficult techniques of knitting to the girls in the Advanced Knitting Club. The "lazy daisy" or "cable" stitches are worked into useful and desirable gifts. Many happy, busy hours of knitting paid out into snazzy argyle socks, colorful afghans, warm scarfs and mittens, and difficult sweaters. Adept at passing strands of wool through their clicking needles and coming out with neat patterns, these girls were able to assist the beginning knitters.

"Whoops, I dropped a stitch!" is an occasional murmur which escapes from one room in which the girls in the Beginners Knitting Club are being patiently taught the rudiments of knitting by Miss Dorothy Currie. Yarn was sometimes tangled, stitches were often dropped, and knitting needles were occasionally sat upon, but spirits ran high. Visible progress was made throughout the school term, as the girls showed great enthusiasm in knitting for themselves.

Draftsmen, slide rule club learn accuracy

Mechanical drawing students can pursue their interests in this field by joining the advanced drafting club instructed by Mr. Charles Callahan, teacher of mechanical drawing arts. The boys become proficient in using the slide rule, compass, and T-square; and, with pencils sharpened to perfection with a special file, these amateur draftsmen are aided in learning fine points of blueprint construction. This club prepares interested boys for industrial production work and improves each boy's skills and techniques.

Under Mr. Albert Clark's expert guidance, the terms sine, cosine, and tangent become familiar to members of the Slide Rule Club. Learning to read the slide rule scales, these members ponder over problems of multiplication, division, squaring numbers, square and cube roots. As they delve deeper into their study, the mathematical geniuses strive to meet the challenges of the functions of angles, special applications of the slide rule to chemistry or physics problems, and the method of scientific notation.

Every Tuesday in the chemistry room eager, young scientists, under the guidance of Mr. Ronald Marks, are found creating numerous projects, as well as solving situations by the use of the advanced scientific method of experimentation as shown by Bob Samuelson and Tom Barber. The self-imposed projects include various electrical equipment and models.

This year the members are helping sponsor the annual Science Fair, in which they will display their projects.

Throughout the year the students gain important knowledge useful in the scientific world of today, through informative movies.

The Future Teachers Club is organized under the able direction of Miss Harriet Titus. The purpose of this club is to acquaint high school students, interested in teaching, with the important fundamentals of teaching at elementary, high school, and even college levels. Panel discussions are often held to discuss the problem of making schools of tomorrow more progressive.

These ambitious students learn the grading systems used by various teachers, the advantages and disadvantages of the teaching profession and the manner of conducting proper classroom meetings.

Those who like to work with leather have every reason to be proud of their choice of club.

The making of useful and decorative articles from leather is one of the oldest crafts, and with the Master Craftsman Mr. Randall, the Leathercraft Club found pleasure and pride in the articles they fashioned from leather.

The chief aim of the group was to learn the skills of leathercraft. With materials furnished by the students supervised by their director, many useful projects took shape and developed most pleasing results.

Amateurs render service to reader's delight

With the help of the library, visual aids, and discussion, the members of the Reading Club aim to improve their reading rate and comprehension. These twenty-five members meeting every Tuesday are concentrating on how to study better before entering college. Donna Kohler, with the help of Mrs. Rodney Schoch, serves the club as their leader. Interesting fiction, nonfiction, and poetry are discussed. The essential literature will be compiled into a book list for required reading. All of the members feel that the club has greatly improved their reading experience.

Where do students go when in search of resource materials and information for books, term papers, and essays? To the library, of course! At this reading paradise and well-stocked book shop, our untiring librarian, Miss Mary Hamilton, and her energetic club members proffer their assistance. The future librarians learn the proper methods of typing and filing index cards, arranging pamphlets and magazines, and stamping books. Tuesday club periods find these members discussing recently read books or acquainting themselves with how to keep a library running smoothly.

"C'est la vie" and "bonne chance" are just a few of the gutteral sounds and foreign expressions that emerge from Miss Harper's room each Tuesday as the future linguists in the French Club struggle with the language and culture of the French people.

Miss Harper coaches her language company in the fundamentals of the tongue and the formation of the various sounds and familiarizes them with France's contributions to the world in various cultural fields.

Aiming to express themselves more freely and vividly and to understand books and poetic passages more easily, nine members of the Creative Writing Club assemble with Mrs. Friedman in room 113 each week. These penmen work intently and industriously, writing and discussing stories, essays, poetry, and plays. If ever there is a rhyme or catchy verse needed to sell any program to the student body, it is likely for these members to be called upon.

Striving to gain a solid foundation in mathematics which will be useful to them in college and later life, twenty-two members of the Math Club meet with their efficient adviser, Mr. Freas Downing, to solve the brain teasers he presents to them.

While mastering formulae such as "c equals 10" or "the sine of a 45° angle," the students labor with figures, wrestle with geometric theorems, and feverishly seek unknowns in equations.

Setting their sights on competency in oratory, the Debate Club learns to speak effectively while refuting logically the arguments of their opponents.

To mold the amateurs into skillful, poised debators, Mr. William Olson and Mr. Daniel Smith spend much time helpfully pointing out errors in practice debates. When the interscholastic tournaments are completed, the student body feels proud of the superior representation.

Acrobats prove agility, adeptness

Bouncing, flipping, tumbling, and jumping, the members of the Girls' Athletic Association attempt their seemingly miraculous feats. Under the instruction of Miss Margaret Atkinson, and with the benefit of such apparatus as the trampoline, horse, and parallel bars, the gymnast execute jumps, flips, somersaults, and stunts such as Katie Johnson and Wilma Schierer are demonstrating.

The highlight of the year's activities is the annual May Day Assembly. A member of the organization is crowned as queen, with a court of six elected from the ranks.

George Schoepf began his second season as coach with four returning lettermen —Bob Adams, Chuck Allen, Stew Barber, and Jerry Scott. The squad had twice the number of track meets as in previous seasons. Bradford won three meets, defeating Port Allegany, Johnsonburg, Ridgway, and Smethport. In the County Meet the team placed second, in the District Nine Meet they placed fourth; and, although represented at the State Meet, they failed to place.

Although the Owls did not have a winning year, they filled the season with thrills. Playing under the direction of head coach, Francis "Rock" Denning, and his assistants, James Dykstra, Edward Phillips, and George Schoepf, the Bradford Owls started their season with a bang by defeating Har-Brack 7 to 0. Spurred on by this victory, the team trounced Meadville 25 to 7. The squad suffered their first loss at the hands of Hornell by the score of 13 to 0, and followed this by losing to Windber 47 to 13. Bradford, playing their first home game, defeated Warren, holding them scoreless for the first time in several seasons. At Punxsutawney, the Owls lost a heartbreaker, 21 to 19. Returning home for the last three games, the Owls lost three straight contests to Erie Academy, undefeated Corry, and Olean.

Director of Athletics, Harold M. Brace, whose picture appears on Sports Division Page, salutes Varsity Coach Wilcox and Jay-vee Coach Pasko for the 1956-'57 season. BHS Varsity won second place in the District Nine, Class A Division. Jay-vees boast eleven victories in twenty games. Every home game was a success for the cage stars, but a jinx accompanied them in the five losses on the opponents' courts.

spur gridiron, cage stars to victory

After school one can hear the words of "Yea Team" or "Fight, Team, Fight" when either the Varsity or Junior Varsity Cheerleaders or both groups practice their yells in the corridors. Miss Margaret Atkinson, girls' gym instructor, advises them; and, with her comments and criticisms to guide them, the girls work toward perfecting their performances.

Braving the cold weather, the varsity supports the football team in the fall. With their formations and dances, they liven any pre-game parades and pep rally. During the basketball season, they lift the spectators' spirits with their cheering at all home and some out-of-town games.

The Jayvee Cheering Squad sells football programs of gridiron games and urges the Baby Owls Basketball Team on to victory with their yells.

Jerry Scott's Elites emerged victorious in the heated ending of the intramural football season, according to Mr. Maxson, instructor.

Basic principles of education can be given no greater aid than in the establishment and encouragement of intramural sports, with supervised programs throughout the year and tournaments to name the winners.

Pride in varsity teams' achievement may come first, but the true value of intramural sports – football, basketball, or softball –cannot be denied.

Intramural titles are captured

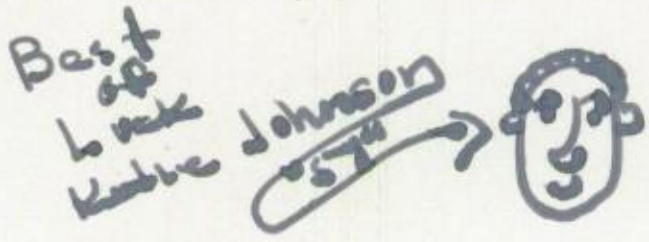
As in the case of the boys, so also the girls come to know the full benefits of sports participation in an intramural program including mainly basketball and volley ball. Miss Atkinson is the girls' instructor.

Though methods may differ and rules of game be eased, the spirit of competition and individual effort cannot be held less than that of the boys.

Interspersed with a well defined program of gym work, the girls pair off each gym period into as many teams as may be present, and battle through to victory or defeat.

As in basketball, so is it also in volley ball, with teams scoring the season's greatest number of wins meeting in an elimination tournament.

Katie Johnson led this year's victors in basketball.



"Peachie" Schierer jumps high into the air to hit the ball over the net as Kitty Craig backs her up.

Dear Diary,

Time is calling an end to our high school years. We remember so vividly roaming the corridors on Frosh Day when we received our introduction to Senior High.

As underclassmen we sat in the balcony and tried to please the seniors. Class meetings, a new experience for us, were smoothed over by our adviser, Mr. Barnhart.

A little more confident as juniors, we had the thrill of receiving our class rings and preparing for the class play and the junior prom. After much consideration and guidance, we chose Larry Ewing as our Student Council President. Miss Harper was our class adviser.

Now as seniors, full of pride and anxiety, we have produced the senior play and are planning our picnic with the aid of our adviser, Mrs. Smith. As the year ends, with sadness we anticipate caps and gowns and graduation.

Alma Mater

'Mid the hills of Pennsylvania
Stands a school we love;
Our devotion is as steadfast
As the stars above.

Though we leave our Alma Mater
Life's great work to find,
Memories of friendship loyal
Linger in our minds.

Chorus:

Bradford High colors, Red and Black
May they float for aye;
We'll remember Alma Mater
Throughout life's long day.

Motto

Nihil sine labore
(Nothing is achieved without effort).

so much fun such a dare - Remember Biology wasn't he nice & crush you had (and on R L) the jogging into going down Mrs Horah! get those grades Honestly! Have our Wednesday "study" Hall. Where we did study! Trying to study Latin + Geometry. That when he came in and helped us? good old days. to one of my partners all those crazy likes, - I kept never forgot Bill know the brain with us - Cute eh? I goofed in Biology I had to suck that rotten water! Ugh so nice + so We have had as houseful of dogs. never forgot the time I had to run for the bus + the time we were so worried about the Latin Test. in everything. Remember being late to Latin + that old bag Hara called us ants? Remember Turnip?!! Ha Ha. I will surely need you next year. Keep that Red + I mean Red Hair + that smile. Happy Birthday!! Doesn't it feel marvelous?!! Soon I'll be driving (watch

P.S. Remember, remember those days Jr. Hi had assemblies + we laughed + giggled. Remember the day we went + didn't have Our Latin done + then we did any. See you next year (I hope) For a wonderful, marvelous girl.

Hi Linda,

Best of luck to the nicest and cutest red-head I know. (Haha I don't know very many. No just kidding). See I wish you could come to Florida with me. Boy would we have fun. Remember we're going to start skating lessons next year too. OK. ("See, he held our hand", remember?) Maybe next year he'll skate with you then. What will you say? Remember the night in bed when you were reading that story outloud and I was laying there making faces. See if anyone would have seen that scene they would've sent for the men in the white coats in no time flat. Remember also when we were eating those cupcakes & apple turnovers waiting for the bus and the way everyone sat there so glum and you and I sitting there laughing like crazy. I'm sure everyone appreciated us. I can't think of anymore silly things we've done, although there are a million. Maybe next year we'll have some better ones. See you next year.
